WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Administration Committee today ordered an investigation of the election of Rep. Dale Alford of Arkansas, a Democrat.

The investigation, ordered by a 12-11 vote, will be conducted by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Robert T. Ashmore (D-N.J.).

Alford, a defeated Brooks Hays Democrat for the house seat from the Fifth Arkansas District last November. He was elected in a written campaign.

Alford has been a leading opponent of integration. Hays is a racial moderate.

The resolution ordering the inquiry directed that it be completed "at the earliest possible time."

Rep. Omar Burleson (D-Tex), chairman of the full committee, said the committee will request "all" documents which also have investigated the Alford-Hays election to provide the committee with any documents available.

Ballots and other election records have been impounded by a federal grand jury at Little Rock.

The committee voting took place behind closed doors, with two members absent.

Advised of the committee action Alford told a reporter:

"As I have always said I welcome an investigation on a fair and impartial basis.

"I know that when all the information has been gathered that the committee desires it will know that my election was the wish of the majority of the people of the Fifth Congressional District."

Jury Probe of Payoff Is Given to Judge

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An interim report on a probe into an alleged $2,000 payoff to suppress anti-pinball publicity was submitted to Circuit Judge William J. Kirby by the Pulaski County Grand Jury yesterday.

The report said the investigation would be continued.

The grand jury investigation resulted from a public charge by Cecil Hill and Harold Dunaway, pinball machine owners, that they paid Robert Trout, 2,000 to refrain from writing a series of anti-pinball articles. The pinball owners also claimed Municipal Judge Robert Taylor knew of the payoff.

Lester and Trout have denied the charges and Trout has filed a $500,000 libel suit against Hill and Dunaway and the Arkansas Gazette, which published transcripts of purported tape recordings of telephone conversations.

"We believe there were meetings between certain pinball machine owners and a newspaper reporter and a municipal judge to suppress publicity with reference to illegal pinball machine operation," a grand jury report said.

But the jury added that present law made it impossible for us to return an indictment against any of the principals.

This indicated the jury felt such meetings did not break any law.

The grand jury completed the first phase of its probe March 12. Hill, Dunaway, Lester and Trout were among the witnesses summoned to testify.

The jury said the interim report was issued because there was such great public concern about the matter.

Hill and Dunaway made their charges while a series of anti-pinball articles was running in the Democrat. They alleged they had paid Trout $2,000 a year earlier to suppress a previous series and that the reporter had asked for more money.

Camden Votes Change to City Manager

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — This Ouachita County seat yesterday, by a 3-2 vote, adopted a city manager form of government under a 1937 law.

The vote in a special election was 1,459 to 1,109. The proposed change carried five of the city's seven precincts.

Mayor Jim Rowan, who favored the change, is expected to call a special election within 30 days to select seven city directors who will hire a manager.

T. B. Camden Boosters Co. headed by Paul May, sparked the manager movement.

Little Rock and Hope already are operating under city managers. El Dorado will hold an election soon on the issue.

Camden's election incorporation, has had mayor-council government. Some of the present 12 aldermen favored and some opposed the change.

All Schools Will Qualify for Aid

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Education Commissioner Arch Ford said today most Arkansas elementary and secondary schools probably would qualify for federal aid in a stepped-up educational program.

The federal plan would provide funds for expansion of courses in science, mathematics and foreign languages.

Ford said allocation of the state's first $266,000 under the program will start as soon as applications are received from school and approval is granted by the Education Department.

Eligible schools will be reimbursed for half of the money they have spent on accelerated teaching programs during the current term.

Congress authorized the educational plan to counter Russian technological advances.

Engineers to Go Ahead With Arkansas Dams

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless there is further objection from a House Appropriations Subcommittee, Army Engineers plan to proceed as originally scheduled with contracts for the Dardanelle and Bufala dams on the Arkansas River in Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The subcommittee chairman, Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo.), who also is chairman of the full committee, directed the engineers a few weeks ago to hold up further action on the projects pending a report of a study into economic feasibility of the big Arkansas River development program.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.), chairman of a similar Senate subcommittee, submitted a bill last week for $3,108,039, submitted to the engineers to proceed.

"Avoiding a clash, Army Engineers now have submitted to Cannon's group a new report on the Arkansas River program and have advised him, in effect, that the report complies with his directive and they now plan to proceed."

Next step would be award of a five million dollar contract to begin construction of the Dardanelle Dam in Arkansas. This would be the first major navigation lock and dam in the program to provide a 9-foot navigation channel on the Arkansas.

Bids for the contract were opened recently by District Army Engineers at Little Rock. The apparent low bid was 3,108,039, submitted by the Jones Construction Co. of Oklahoma City. This was 1/2 million dollars under the army engineer estimate for that particular phase of the work.

Under normal procedure the contract would be awarded about two weeks after opening of bids.

Arkansas and Oklahoma members of Congress said today that the Army Engineer report submitted to Cannon shows that the overall development program now has a more favorable benefit to cost ratio than when the project was authorized more than 10 years ago.

The report has not been made public.

Space Group Chairman Takes a Ride

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Space Committee took a ride—about 40 inches off the ground—on a flying platform which one colleague suggested could make the nation's highways obsolete.

Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La.) got onto the rectangular-shaped metal device at the conclusion of a committee hearing Tuesday and, at the touch of a switch, began skimming around just off the floor.

Spacecrafts Inc. of Washington described the platform as an experimental version of its Hydro-Air Vehicle which it said is capable of moving over both water and ground at heights up to a few inches.

Carl W. Bollum, Spacecrafts president, said his firm is ready to begin production of more elaborate vehicles capable of speeds up to 100 miles an hour and designed for both military and civilian use.

He said his company hopes to have both commercial and sports vehicles available for sale to the public within 18 months.

Bumps force air under high pressure into a pan-shaped device under the vehicle.

The air then is leaked out, creating the bottom of the vehicle, around what Bollum called an air cushion that pushes the craft off the ground. An airplane-type propeller provides the propulsion.

Cancer Stricken Dulles Hands in Resignation as Secretary of State

Herter Met With Staff, President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Secretary of State Christian Archibald Herter, who has been regarded as the most likely successor to John Foster Dulles, was meeting with his staff today when President Eisenhower announced Dulles' resignation.

The 64-year-old Herter, who is understood to have been aware of Eisenhower's intention of announcing that Dulles would end his six-year role as chief foreign policy maker.

A former Republican congressman and former governor of Massachusetts, Herter is known to have been Dulles' choice as his successor.

Herter is held in high regard by many influential Democrats as well as Republican senators. Further, he is reported to have displayed an ability to work well with Eisenhower during Dulles' illness.

Herter is afflicted with arthritis of the hips which pains him if he walks more than 10 or 20 yards, or must stand for any length of time.

But, this physical limitation has never caused him to miss a single day's work.

Herter frequently uses lightweight metal arm crutches.

His physicians report he has no arthritis anywhere else in his body and is perfectly comfortable sitting or lying down or walking short distances.

C. Douglas Dillon, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, who has been mentioned as another potential successor to Dulles was in the Philippines when Eisenhower made his announcement.

A wealthy investment banker, Dillon is 48 years old. He was born in Switzerland of American parents. For the past two years, he has been the State Department's top officer in charge of foreign policy.

Dillon stopped off in the Philippines after attending the Southeast Asia Treaty group's annual meeting.

He is due to return to Washington Sunday.

Blonde Pumps 18 Bullets Into a Man

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A beautiful blonde typist was jailed in a murder investigation today, accused of pumping 18 bullets into the body of a gardener to satisfy an urge for a human target.

Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore, quoted Rosemarie Diane Bjorkland, 38, as saying:

"I had a terrible urge to kill someone ever since I started target shooting as a hobby. I wanted a human target."

August Norry, 28, a golf course gardener, was found dead in the hills south of San Francisco on Tuesday.

It was his custom to go there to dump grass cuttings and garden debris.

His body had been riddled by 18 bullets.

Sheriff Whitmore said Miss Bjorkland related she had met Norry twice before, as she was shooting at targets, while he emptied his gardening bags.

Whitmore again quoted the girl: "I used to go up there, and point my pistol at a target pretending it was a human being. Mr. Norry came that day, was my target."

"Suddenly I had the overpowering urge to shoot him. I kept shooting, emptying my gun and reloading. That was the only reason. There was no other."

Today's order requires the railroad to keep the trains in operation for four months after April 27 to give ICC time to investigate.

WARRIOR BASIN

By LESLIE ERNENWEIN

THE STORY: Jim Furlong has turned renegade after the Empire ranch ordered him to leave. Furlong's cabin was burned by Clee Veto the Empire foreman, and Jim intends to even the score.

Pardee's month-end visits in Junction seldom varied.

Promptly at six o'clock, he would limp to a cottage at the corner of Residential Ave. where he ate supper with his wife and son. The town gossips had never ferreted out the exact situation or circumstance which had prompted Pardee to leave a spacious house at Empire and set up housekeeping in a cottage. The move had created quite a stir and there were rumors of divorce at the time. But later, as Pardee's practice of eating supper with his wife and Brent became an established custom, the separation ceased to be a topic of gossip.

So it was this morning, at quarter past nine, Pardee limped across Main Street with the bank clerk stopped up to the veranda and returned along it to his office-bedroom. The clerk placed the walls on a desk, said, "Thank you, Mister Pardee," and departed. A man with a pair of saddlebags slung across his right shoulder stood in the lobby doorway.

"At about the same time Sheriff Sid Link came out of the Elks Cafe, smoking his after-breakfast cigar.

Luke Kimble and his wife went into the store, but Grace appeared only herded for the Bon Ton Millinery, came along the blank walk. She was, Link thought, the prettiest girl in Warrior Basin.

Link tipped his hat and asked graciously, "How are things on Mexican Flat, Miss Grace?" "Very well, thank you," she said, favoring him with a glint of a smile as she walked past him. Then she stopped and asked, "Do you know if Mister Pardee is in town?"

"Yes, ma'am, he is. Came in yesterday."

Resistently, as if forcing her self to an unpleasant decision, Grace asked, "Did he make a complaint against Jim Furlong?" Link nodded. "Chances are he's already pulled out. A man would be foolish to do what he done and stay in Warrior Basin."

"But Jim isn't a criminal," Grace protested.

Link shrugged and saw Fred Eggleston come to the doorway of his office across the street. "He pulled a gun on Jules Pardee. Shot a splinter out of Jules' leg. That's criminal assault according to the law books—symped robbery."

"Oh—are you sure he used a gun?" Grace demanded.

Link nodded. "Yes, ma'am, it was assault with a deadly weapon. I don't know what got into Furlong. But he went berserk, and that's all there is to it."

Generally subdued now, Grace said faintly, "Perhaps he has gone away."

"Shouldn't wonder," Link said. Grace continued along the walk.

Link saw Fred Eggleston's quarter across Main Street to intercept her. Grace Kimble, the sheriff thought, wouldn't look for mile companionship.

Link was passing the Weekly Clarion office when Buchanan Fyfe called, "Sid—just a moment," and came quickly to the doorway.

"What's itching you now?" Link inquired.

"I drove out to the Tailholt Hills yesterday afternoon," Fyfe reported. "I saw Jim Furlong's butcher cabin, and talked to some of his neighbors."

"Those people out there say it has happened before, but it will always happen when anyone goes to how to Pardee's will. That's an outrageous situation, Sid, and I intend to say so in print."

"It won't do Jim Furlong any good, and it might do you some harm."

Link saw a man come off the Utah Hotel veranda—the stranger he had observed yesterday morning—and watched him place a pair of saddlebags on a horse at the hitchrack. "What's so deplorable about it?" he asked.

"The fact that free men in this free nation will abide such domination without fighting back," Fyfe said urgently. "It's against every fundamental concept of American tradition. This country was founded by men who refused to be dominated."

Link watched the stranger mount and ride westward along Main Street. Don't look off more than you can chew," Buchanan.

"How long will your newspaper test if Empire Freight refuses to haul newspaper for it?"

"I'll find some other way to bring it in," Fyfe said. "I'll not be intimidated by threats of economic reprisal."

Coleman, Link said, "Keep in mind that Jules Pardee was fighting Indians when you were in comfort back East. He made this stretch of country safe for such as you, and those folks in the Tailholt Hills. That's why he's the big mogul in Warrior Basin."

"But that doesn't give him the right to burn a man's home!"

The door of Pardee's room was closed. Link said, "Jules?" There was no answer.

Link looked at his watch. It was 20 minutes to 10. Pardee must have come from the bank by now, he thought, and tried the door. It opened, and the sheriff blinked in astonishment.

Jules Pardee lay on the floor, bound and gagged, blood staining the gray hair on the back of his head. In the few moments it took to free his hands and mouth, Link observed that the big man was breathing.

Asked whether the doctors were certain of "a cancerous growth in the lower neck," White said he had to stick to the wording of the statement.

"Look at those sleek, beautifully proportioned lines! They're lovely!"

"Ford wagons are higher inside than most, too—wonderful for tall lamps!"

"Its seats stay easiest of all."

DOROTHY DIX

Life's Merry, So's Jerry in Home Without Marriage

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm a widow of 32, with three small children. Five months ago I met a young fellow. I'm very fond of him and would marry him in a minute if he'd say the word. Jerry is 27, a bachelor and we get along splendidly in every way.

He's happy with me but is afraid to get married. I know he'll ask me someday but I want to get married now. There's no financial problem as I have my own home and he has a good job. How can I convince him that we'd have a happy marriage?

DEAR LORA: Jerry isn't just afraid of marriage. He just considers it unnecessary. Why should he get tied up in a bunch of legal red tape and white wedding ribbons when you make things so charming without it? Your only possible chance of marrying Jerry is to end the present housekeeping arrangement until he is willing to make it permanent—which my money says is never.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Some time ago I met a man quite a bit older than I (I'm 33). He pleaded for a date until I finally gave in and went out with him. We had a delightful time and followed it up by several more dates. One night at a church meeting a friend asked me what I was doing but with a married man. She had seen us together. On our next date I asked the man if he was married. He seemed surprised that I knew about it and said he was. He said he didn't care to talk about it, that it wasn't important and shouldn't make any difference to us. Should I keep on seeing him or not?

DEAR FELICIA: A lot of all right, you are 33 and should know better. Do you think a marriage is unimportant and that a married man should come and go as he pleases, deceiving single ladies, double crossing his wife, and acting like an irresponsible high school kid? You know he belongs with his wife, not you, so who are you trying to fool? You've learned the difference between right and wrong in church. Put the knowledge into practice.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: We are a small office with a big problem. It concerns two of our co-workers who have worked together for over 20 years. Another girl in the office is leaving after 10 years. We would like to take her out to dinner as a farewell gesture but the two 20 year vets create a problem. Neither will go if the other goes. What can you suggest?

DEAR C. W.: My impulse is to advise knocking the two veterans skulls together to see if you can generate a spark of sense. Guess that would be too drastic. Tackle them one at a time or together, tell them in 15 minutes they put behind them and ask if they want to be gracious on this one occasion at least. If they won't cooperate, I like the departing member out yourself. As a small gay party is better than a large gloomy one.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your care of this newspaper.

Cards Finally Win; Pirates Still Winless

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals finally won one for new manager Solly Hemus. That leaves Pittsburgh's Pirates as the National League's only winless club.

Hemus, making the shift from utility infielder to skipper, put Stan Musial back on first base Tuesday night at Los Angeles after the Cards had lost their first three games at home. Stan the Man (1-for-15) was hitless, but his replacement in left field, Chuck Essegian, paid off with a run-scoring double in a 6-2 decision over the Dodgers.

In the other NL night game, ex-Rube Bob Purkey became the season's first two-game winner by taking his fifth in a row from Pittsburgh in a 3-2 victory at Cincinnati. That left the Pirates with an 0-4 record.

Senators Now Think Dulles Will Resign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators expressed today a growing belief that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles may have to hand in his resignation soon.

There were well-founded reports—including those from persons who have talked to him—that Dulles has failed to respond in treatment for a cancerous condition.

If fresh medical treatments planned at Walter Reed Army Hospital do not show results, the general expectation among members of Congress is that Dulles will step out of his official job quickly to clear the way for appointment of a successor.

Dulles returned unexpectedly Sunday from a Florida rest to receive the hospital's further check and treatment. President Eisenhower visited him for 45 minutes Monday but delayed a decision on Dulles' future.

Press secretary James C. Harter said later that Dulles has not resigned, and added that "pending additional medical evaluation there will be no further statement from the President."

But several senators said that if Dulles finds he is not going to be able to attend the scheduled East-West "top gun" ministers meeting in Geneva May 11, they believe he will want the American representative there to carry the full duties of secretary of state.

In Dulles' absence, that representative would be a so-called "Christian Heritor," undersecretary who is serving now as acting secretary.

Sen. Thomas Kuchel of California, assistant Senate Republican leader, said there is no question in his mind that Dulles will "eliminate himself" if his medical condition indicates physical inability to resume his full responsibilities.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), arriving added that "I don't think the country can afford to go on and on without an active head of the State Department."

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the assistant Democratic leader, said in a separate interview he agrees that the chief U.S. delegate must not be in an inferior position at Geneva.

"He must have the full title of secretary of state," Mansfield said. "I am sure that if he becomes convinced in his own mind that he can't carry on, Secretary Dulles will hand in his papers."

New Patient Policy for State Hospital

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Welfare Department has instructed its county offices not to certify any patients to the University Medical Center here unless they are eligible for cash grants.

The policy, announced today, is effective Thursday.

Welfare Commissioner C. J. Adams said the move was necessary because the Medical Center has withdrawn from an agreement it had with the Welfare Department under a 1957 patient quota law.

The center announced recently it would tighten its admission policies starting Thursday in advance of a new patient quota, which takes effect in June.

Admitted patients, under the new admission criteria, must show proof of need. Those eligible for Welfare Department assistance in the indigent care program must present a written certificate from their local Welfare office.

Besides requirements of proof of need, all patients must be referred to the center by private physicians.

IRS Braced for Closing Rush

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service office here is braced today for the closing rush of income tax returns.

Deadline for filing in 1958 is coming tonight.

IRS officials estimated a record 45,000 Arkansans would file this year, an increase of about 7,500 over last year.

Ten IRS staff members were designated today to assist late filers. The same number worked through the day yesterday.

Declares Dentists Not Mechanics

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A dentistry professor said today that contrary to widespread misconception, dentists were not mechanics. "They are actually physicians of the oral cavity," asserted Dr. Hamilton B. G. Robinson, dean and professor of oral pathology at the University of Kansas City School of Dentistry.

Addressing a convention of the Arkansas Dental Assn., Robinson said the dentist must be concerned with at least 250 diseases of the mouth.

He pointed out that dentists treat many of these ills. A major exception is cancer in the oral cavity, he said.

"In cancer cases," Robinson told the delegates, "the dentist's responsibility is diagnosis, not treatment."

More than 7,000 cases of mouth cancer are reported in this nation each year, he said.

Robinson was presented with an award by the association for his many contributions to the progress of dentistry in Arkansas.

The four-day convention ends tomorrow.
